A WILLIE BOY ON HIS YACHT

Will West, comedian, and Mrs. Will West, comedienne, have crossed the ocean over a score of times on the same boat, The Majestic. It is Will West's only oddity to do all his sailing on one boat; such good friends has he made from captain to stokers that The Majestic will soon be known as Will West's yacht. A father, eighty-three years old, resident all his life in London, is Will West's chief incentive for crossing the ocean each summer; otherwise England would never have seen him again since the day Charles Frohman first brought him to this country; for one of Will West's most frequent sayings—and a saying with an unmistakable London accent—is this, "Those bloody Britishers have no use for us Americans."

THE POLITICAL WORLD IN INDIANA (FROM THE TIMES' OWN INDIANAPOLIS BUREAU)

TIMES BUREAU.
AT STATE CAPITAL.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 18.—The onslaught of the temperance forces on Washington last week was nothing when compared with what the temperance forces of the state are planning to pull off in Indiana in preparation for the constitutional convention which is practically certain to be held in 1915. Plans already are being laid for the campaign that will be conducted for the purpose of forcing through a provision in the proposed new constitution prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors in the state of Indiana, and it is announced that this campaign, which practically is in progress now, will be continued until the whole thing is over.

The campaign will be run under the leadership of the Anti-Saloon League, and officials and leaders in that organization declare that they do not intend to allow any man in Indiana to go uninformed as to just what the issue is. They promise that the prohibition issue will overshadow everything else and that the whole campaign will simmer down to that one proposition. During the last week thousands of prohibitionists and temperance people swarmed in Washington make demonstration in favor of the passage of a resolution introduced by Congressman Hobson, for a prohibition amendment to the United States constitution. This army was led by E. S. Shumaker, state superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League. Shumaker is one of the liveliest wires in the temperance movement in this country, and he has caused the liquor people of this state more sleepless nights than any other man.

Shumaker says that the campaign for a prohibition provision in the Indiana constitution will be the most vigorous ever conducted in the state. He says that every man in Indiana will be compelled to take a stand one way or the other on the proposition. There will be no middle ground. Those who are not in favor of the prohibition provision will be regarded as being against it. The Anti-Saloon League, he says, does not intend to sidestep or shift the issue and the fight. There will not be such a thing as a middle-of-the-roader in this fight, he says.

The campaign will be on next year when the question of whether a constitutional convention shall be held will be voted on at the state election. Indiana will be overrun with temperance orators. They will go into every nook and corner and cranny of the state. The Anti-Saloon League already is making its organization with this one issue in view, and it is said that the organization will be air tight and that it will be carried into every neighborhood. It will be formed on a systematic plan.

PRETTY BUTTON
TRIMMED DRESS

There does not seem to be any doubt that a majority of the voters next year will favor the holding of a constitutional convention. All parties have declared in favor of the plan. Everybody recognizes the necessity for changes in the present constitution, and the fate of the late lamented Tom Marshall constitution shows that there is no possible chance for the constitution to be revised in any other way than by a convention called for that purpose.

With the convention almost a certainty, the Anti-Saloon League will bend every effort to elect delegates to that convention who will be in favor of a prohibition provision. This will be the hottest part of the entire campaign. Political party lines will be wiped out. It will not be a political party matter. The line will be drawn between the temperance people and the liquor interests of the state, and whenever a line is drawn like that it means some fight.

It is known, too, that the liquor people are making their own plans for this campaign. It means life or death with them, and they intend to fight for it. Altogether it looks like there is a brisk campaign in sight. The withdrawal of Reginald H. Sullivan, of this city, from the race for appointment as United States district attorney, did not create much surprise here, because it was known that Sullivan had no chance to land the place. This leaves Frank C. Dalley, of Huntington, with practically a clear field, as far as is known here, and it is expected that he will be appointed. This might prevent Charles A. Edwards, of Huntington, from landing the appointment as internal revenue collector, because Dalley's county and Edwards' county adjoin. Geographically, it does not seem likely that the two appointments would be made from adjoining counties.
